

Room for Doubt
Does God really exist?

We have to start where _____ are, not where _____ are.

Reason 1: The Beginning of the Universe Points Us to God as the Originator.

The Cosmological Argument:

1. Whatever begins to exist has a _____.
2. The _____ began to exist.
3. Therefore, the universe has a _____.

Reason 2: Fine Tuning in the Universe Points Us to God as the _____ Fine Tuner.

Reason 3: Our Sense of _____ Points us to God as the Moral Lawgiver.

Conclusions:

1. There is a God who started this immense universe
2. There is a God who fine-tuned that universe to extremely precise tolerances so it would support life, including yours and mine;
3. There is a God who is perfectly good and who created us with a deeply-embedded sense of morality.

Reason 4: Our Personal _____ Points to a God.

Q: How do I know God exists?

A: He _____ my life.

Room for Doubt
Does God really exist?

We have to start where _____ are, not where _____ are.

Reason 1: The Beginning of the Universe Points Us to God as the Originator.

The Cosmological Argument:

1. Whatever begins to exist has a _____.
2. The _____ began to exist.
3. Therefore, the universe has a _____.

Reason 2: Fine Tuning in the Universe Points Us to God as the _____ Fine Tuner.

Reason 3: Our Sense of _____ Points us to God as the Moral Lawgiver.

Conclusions:

1. There is a God who started this immense universe
2. There is a God who fine-tuned that universe to extremely precise tolerances so it would support life, including yours and mine;
3. There is a God who is perfectly good and who created us with a deeply-embedded sense of morality.

Reason 4: Our Personal _____ Points to a God.

Q: How do I know God exists?

A: He _____ my life.